

EVS with Caerhys Organic Community Agriculture (COCA) PIC 933762062

Host project

Caerhys Organic Community Agriculture (COCA) is a community supported agriculture scheme based near St Davids, Pembrokeshire, Wales. COCA consists of around 50 household members who work together to grow their own vegetables, salads and soft fruits and support a local farmer by sharing the risks and rewards together.

COCA aims to educate people in sustainable food production and to promote organic food and community supported agriculture.

COCA is part of a growing movement called community supported agriculture (CSA). COCA's objectives are as follows:

- Produce and enable wider access to local food
- Enable members to live well and eat well in an organic and sustainable way
- Support sustainable food production in the local area
- Grow a community around the project based on shared work, social activity and a friendship.

spirit of

COCA is a community based scheme and all members do work together on a voluntary base to obtain the organisations' objectives. Besides the local volunteers who are helping on the farm on a weekly basis, COCA has been working with international volunteers for more than 5 years. The volunteers play an important role in the work of COCA and in the day to day work at the farm.

Project outline

COCA is looking for 1 EVS volunteer from EU member countries to help support and develop their work at Caerhys Organic Farm.

Vital to the EVS placement at COCA is the chance for the volunteer to develop their own ideas and implement their own personal projects and activities. The members of COCA will make relevant training and development opportunities available where applicable. Therefore the role of the EVS volunteer at Caerhys farm will largely depend on the motivation and personal objectives of the volunteer. However, the following areas will always be part of the EVS role:

The EVS volunteer will be actively involved in the farm work: growing, planting, transplanting and planning community growing as part of the Growing Team.

The volunteer will also be involved with other sub groups from the core group working on:

- Promotion Team: Social media, website content, getting involved and meeting with local community to raise awareness and promote the work of COCA.
- Events Team: planning various local events, e.g. annual harvest party.
- Distribution Team: delivering fruits and vegetables boxes to drop of points
- Membership Team: Planning volunteering days and working on good relationship with members.

The EVS volunteer will work 35 hours per week and will receive at least 2 days holiday per month. As well as this, they will have two consecutive days off each week (usually a weekend). If for any reason, the volunteer work these days they will be offered two different days off in the week to make up the time.

Required skills

COCA is looking for a volunteer with an interest in environment, agriculture, horticulture, community work, and community growing. Experience of working on a farm may be useful but is not our foremost criteria. The projects hosted by COCA are open to all young people, regardless of background, competences and experience.

The projects hosted by COCA is open to all young people aged 18 – 30 living in one of the 28 EU member states, regardless of background, competences and experience. Volunteers ideally will:

- Have an interest in environment, agriculture, horticulture, community work and community growing
- Have experienced work with and/ or have an interest in working in a community based agriculture scheme
- Have a good level of English and a commitment to improving their English (to be able to get the most from the placement)
- Be flexible and adaptable to change
- Be reliable
- Have a willingness to develop projects and pieces of work according to interests.

Practical conditions

The EVS volunteer will live together in a static mobile home on Caerhys Organic Farm. Each of them will have their own separate bedroom but will share kitchen, bathroom and sitting room. The static mobile home is in good condition and has been used as accommodation throughout the year for previous international volunteers. All year, other international volunteers will be hosted by COCA, which gives the EVS volunteer an opportunity of intercultural learning and sharing experience with young people from different countries. The accommodation is on site and close to the farm house where the supervisor and mentor are living. The bus stop is about 500 meters up the road to catch buses going into the city of St. Davids (only 3 busses run every day).

Each month the volunteer will receive their pocket money and food allowance directly into their bank accounts (they will be supported to set up UK accounts). In addition, the EVS volunteer will receive a share of the harvest each week.

Things you should know

Because the project is very remote/ isolated, the volunteer should be interested and motivated in living in a beautiful but remote area of West Wales. The living conditions of this project are VERY BASIC. There is limited INTERNET on the farm and very bad signal.
